AmeriPro Health Awarded Clinch County, Georgia EMS Contract

Unanimous vote by county commissioners reflects growing demand for sustainable EMS models in rural communities

ATLANTA (July 24, 2026) – AmeriPro Health (AmeriPro), an industry leader in emergency services, patient logistics, and technology-driven healthcare services, announced today it has been awarded a contract to provide emergency ambulance services in Clinch County, Georgia.

The Clinch County Board of Commissioners unanimously approved the agreement, which takes effect on August 7. The partnership reflects the county's commitment to maintaining high-quality, sustainable EMS services for its 6,860 residents across an 824-square-mile service area that generates an estimated 1,250 emergency calls annually.

As part of the agreement, AmeriPro will deploy a dedicated 24-hour Advanced Life Support (ALS) ambulance staffed by a team of three EMTs and three paramedics, including a field supervisor. The initial contract term is one year, with an option to renew for an additional year.

“Rural communities face unique challenges when it comes to sustaining high-quality emergency medical services,” said Larry Richardson, CEO of AmeriPro Health. “We are honored that Clinch County has entrusted us with this responsibility and look forward to building a partnership rooted in professionalism, accountability, and transparency. By combining clinical excellence with operational efficiency and data-driven decision-making, our goal is to deliver dependable EMS services that residents can count on for years to come while continuing to strengthen the regional network of communities AmeriPro serves across South Georgia.”

County leaders selected AmeriPro for its proven track record of delivering high-quality EMS services while maintaining a long-term focus on operational sustainability. Through a combination of clinical expertise, advanced analytics, and close collaboration with local stakeholders, AmeriPro works with communities to continuously evaluate and adapt services in response to changing needs and performance trends.

“After a thorough evaluation process, we believed AmeriPro was the right partner to help meet the current and future EMS needs of our community,” said Jaclyn T. James, County Administrator, Clinch County Board of Commissioners. “Their commitment to professionalism, transparency, and long-term sustainability aligned closely with the values and expectations we have for emergency services in Clinch County. We are confident this partnership will help ensure our residents continue receiving reliable, professional care when they need it most.”

The partnership reflects a broader trend across the EMS industry as county leaders seek sustainable solutions for maintaining emergency medical services amid growing operational, financial, and workforce pressures. AmeriPro's approach emphasizes proactive planning, predictive analytics, and ongoing collaboration with local leaders to help communities adapt to evolving needs while maintaining high levels of service.

Established in 2018 in Atlanta, AmeriPro has rapidly expanded its footprint across South Georgia, providing 911 emergency medical services to 12 counties and employing 335 people. The company's leadership team brings more than a century of experience in emergency communications, systems design, and medical transport operations.
